Then and Now... The Mansion's Third Floor

Ever wonder what's on the third floor? You know the floor above the meeting rooms and bride's room. A walk around the floor looks like a rabbit warren of rooms with metal door numbers on them. From a window, the third floor overlooks the Courtyard roof. There are closets from Mrs. Garrett's time and a few fireplaces. There are business tenants there now whose offices look at the park below and the Washington Monument. With Dale Whitehead's facts about the early years of the third floor, let's start at the beginning. . . .

While Mrs. Garrett made the Mansion her home, the third floor looked and was used quite differently from today. Excerpted from Our Heritage by Katherine B. Dehler, "On the third floor, an extremely large bedroom with an adjoining bath in which there was a fireplace and also a guest apartment, consisting of a bedroom, sitting room, and bath overlooking Mt. Vernon Place. Totally detached from these guest quarters are twelve servants' rooms, some of which are double, which made it possible to house sixteen members of the staff of twenty or more who were engaged to run this palatial home."

The third floor had fallen into disrepair after the home was sold at auction. It became a storage area of sorts. In the late 1990s, the Walters Museum was looking to increase its staff and a proposal was brought forth to create a doorway between #5 West (the Museum office) and the third floor of the Mansion. A deal was struck and the Museum paid $150,000 for renovation

MISSION STATEMENT

The mission of the Garrett-Jacobs Mansion Endowment Fund is to preserve and restore the Mansion as a National Historic Landmark and to share the history, architectural and civic legacy of the Mansion for the benefit and education of the public.

of much of the space with the addition of modern wiring and climate control. The area in the original #11 house has not been updated; however, the planned elevator access may result in this area being brought up to modern standards as well. After occupying the space for less than six years, the Museum turned the space back to the Club and sealed the doorway.

Since that time, the third floor front offices have been leased to tenants who now consist of entirely non-profit institutions including the Boys and Girls Clubs of Baltimore, The Baltimore Concert Opera, The Baltimore Chamber Orchestra, and The Mount Vernon Place Conservancy.

In talking with the tenants, thought you'd like to know what a few tenants say about their office space. Anna Brinkley, the Assistant Manager of Development, Management, and Programming for the Mt. Vernon Place Conservancy that manages the Washington Monument and the Mount Vernon Place park squares wrote, "which is why we love our offices at the Engineers Club. We've been here since September 2016, and we love being able to just look out our window to see this beautiful site that we're charged with managing, restoring, and maintaining.

Y'landa Simmons, Vice President of Research and Development with the Boys and Girls Clubs of Metropolitan Baltimore expressed: "Since 2007, Boys and Girls Clubs of Metropolitan Baltimore have had the pleasure of being tenants in the Engineers Club. Our experience has been nothing short of wonderful which is largely due to the administrative and wait/support staff. They have always been professional, pleasant, and extremely helpful." Ms. Simmons added, "The Engineers Club's location is also an important factor. It is central to the eight Boys & Girls Clubs that we currently operate throughout the City of Baltimore. We look forward to continuing our residency here and our relationship with the Club's Administration."

Matt Death, Vice-President of Corporate and Business Affairs for the Boys and Girls Clubs gave a walk-around tour of the third floor. While being interviewed in his office, he talked about their annual Christmas Party sponsored by the Engineers Club where 80-100 kids enjoyed making gingerbread houses, listened to a caroler and story-telling, ate dinner, and each child left with a present. Sounds much like one of Mrs. Garrett's Christmas parties for Baltimore's newsboys, doesn't it?

Dale Whitehead, Executive Director of the Engineers Club is especially pleased to house all of these institutions at below market rents to support their missions. ■

Another Success... The Fire Ball

Held Saturday February 18th, the Annual, long-tradition Fire Ball had 457 attendees, a sell-out. This fundraiser exceeded a $60,000 net profit for the Garrett-Jacobs Mansion Endowment Fund. The Ball was co-chaired by Chris McCarthy, Jessica Souder, Tammy Baczynski, and Kurt Wallace. It was decided that the event would have a Candyland theme which was vibrantly interpreted by this year's decor sponsor, Prestigious Occasions. This year's menu and custom drinks also contributed to the theme with such specialties as Gumdrop Martini, Rainbow-Rita, Following the Marissa Muro Trio was the band Klassix. The Band created a fun and upbeat atmosphere in the Ballroom. Guests took home some fun photos taken at Gravity 180's photo booth.

Thanks to all the sponsors. They were: Evapco – Main Bar, N.H. Yates & Co. – Specialty Drinks Bar, Emjay-Courtyard Bar, Siemens – Sushi Bar, Havtech – Patron Bar, ATS - Beer Bar, Southern Mech – Bourbon Bar,

Trane - Rum Bar, United Energy Products - Entertainment, Asbestos Specialists – Lower Level Bar, Compliance Environment - Photo Booth, Chesapeake Systems – Raw Bar, Hudak – Lower-Level Bar, Viataulic – Coffee Bar, and Power Systems – Party Bus.
